Anti-Prohibition Candidates Given Victories in Ohio

Two-Thirds of State's Precincts Indicate Defeat of Drys

STATE TURNS MOIST

Governor White, Democrat, Re-elected by Big Majority

COLUMBUS, Ohio—(AP)—Victories for anti prohibition candidates in Ohio's primary election, were indicated Wednesday by a vote of two-thirds of the states precincts.

Most of the candidates endorsed by the hitherto politically powerful anti saloon league were defeated by wide margins.

Though there was no direct vote on the issue results were interpreted by the anti league indicating that Ohio has turned moist.

On the Republican ticket, David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy aeronautics had a vote of nearly 226,000 to 195,000 of his closest rival, secretary of state Clarence Brown, the dry candidate in the gubernatorial nomination race.

Ingalls favored repeal of the 18th amendment.

Governor White, Democrat, favoring a referendum, and seeking re-election has a dan easy victory.

Democrat Women Plan State Meet

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross to Speak at Little Rock May 18th

Representatives of Democratic women's clubs from all over Arkansas will meet at 10:15 o'clock Wednesday morning, May 18, at Hotel Lafayette, Little Rock, for their first annual session, according to notice received by Hempstead county members.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming, who is vice-chairman of the National Democratic Committee and official leader of the Democratic women of the nation, will be the honor guest and key-note speaker of the convention. J. N. Heiskell, Editor of the Arkansas Gazette, also will speak.

"A very important feature of the convention," says the announcement, "will be the adoption of a platform which will set forth those principles of government for which the members of the club stand. This platform should in no sense be construed as a suggestion to the national Democratic party. The plank adopted will be designed to apply to the state of Arkansas with the view of offering men, interested in good government, the cooperation of women who have faith and pride in the state in which they live."

In order to compete with motor truck transportation," says the bulletin, "the railroads have published rates offering to haul most all classes of goods, in one lot, at a considerable reduction from the present less-carload rates. The new basis offers three minimum weights: 12,000, 25,000 and 40,000 pounds, with graduated rates.

"All classes of merchandise can be placed in these cars with few exceptions, such exceptions being, liquid acids, fresh fruits and vegetables and other perishables, automobiles, livestock and explosives."

The bulletin continues with an illustration of the saving to the shipper. Billed as less-carload shipment, 12,000 pounds at the regular rate of $1.71 would cost $205.20; while the consolidated car shipment at the rate of $1.20, would cost only $144.00—a saving of $61.20.

On 25,000 pounds, the freight saving would be $132.50; and on 40,000 pounds, $336.00.

Five Injured in Head-on Collision

Two Hurt Seriously in Auto Accident South of Texarkana

TEXARKANA—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Jackson, of Longview, were seriously injured, their eight-months-old baby received minor cuts and bruises and two other men were hurt slightly late Tuesday in a terrific collision of two automobiles 25 miles south of Texarkana on the Shreveport highway.

Bill Smith, also of Longview, driver of the car in which the Jacksons were riding, received a fractured kneecap, and Carl Gramann, of Cuero, Texas, lone occupant of the other machine, was injured slightly about the body.

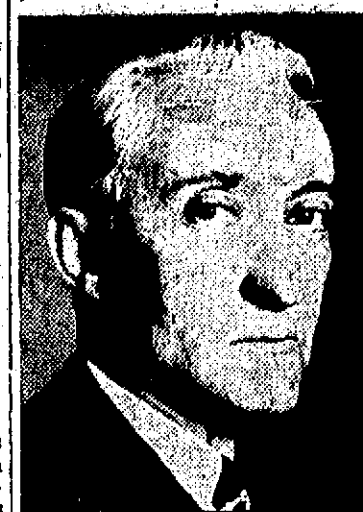

The injured were brought to Michael Meagher hospital here in an East ambulance after they had been given first aid treatment by a physician at Atlanta where they were taken first by passing motorists.

Gramann, after being treated at the hospital, was able to give an accurate account of the accident. He said he was going south on his way to Tyler from points in Missouri when the accident occurred.

"I was going about 50 miles an hour and had just passed over the crest of a hill when I saw the other automobile approaching," Gramann said. "I saw the driver put out his hand as if

Russo-Japanese War Clouds Seen

Two Nations Now Near Open Break in Manchuria, Observers Say

TOKIO.—Adherents of a policy of peace in the Far East were alarmed Tuesday as additional symptoms of a widening of the breach between Japan and Russia appeared. It appears that the two nations are now precariously near an armed conflict in Manchuria. Clouds of ominous significance are gathering over the political horizon and little being done to relieve the tense situation.

Actual Russo-Japanese warfare, in the minds of students of history here, seems to be merely a matter of time. The collision may not occur for six months or a year, or it may even be two or more years away, but it will take place ultimately, in the view of more and more people.

This is held to be largely due to the Soviet refusing to accept the changes that have come over Manchuria—at least, the presumption in official Japanese circles is that Moscow is not likely willingly to reconcile herself to these changes.

For some time not alone the news agencies and newspapers of Japan, but also important government departments, such as the Foreign Office, the War Office and the Navy Department, have been receiving reports of warlike preparation by the Soviet along the Manchurian-Soviet frontier. They have been hearing stories of trenches being dug, of work being in progress for double tracking a portion of the trans-Siberian railway, of troops concentrating along the border, of men being deployed in such a manner that suggests hostilities, of massing of airplanes; even of day and night transportation of foodstuffs and ammunition and of the conversion of chemical factories in Soviet Russia to war purposes and of the fortification of Russian islands near Vladivostok.

Political Pals of Capone Convicted

State Senator and Colleague Adjudged Guilty of Allowing Short Weights

CHICAGO—(AP)—State Senator Dan Sheridan and his colleague, Harry Hopkins, political pals of the late Al Capone, were found guilty Tuesday of conspiring to let Chicago merchants cheat their customers of millions by shortweighting. The jury left to Judge James J. Kelly the penalty they must pay for the illicit wealth gathered from storekeepers at whose ciolations they "winked."

But the jurors picked the most lenient of the four possible verdicts against the former city sealer and his deputy, appointees in the cabinet of former Mayor William Hale Thompson. The misdemeanors count they chose carried a maximum sentence of one year in the house of correction and a fine of $2,000. It may be as low as a single day and $1 fine.

The prosecutors who traced the "protection" fees paid by the cheating merchants to Sierritella and his aide never estimated the cost to the housewives of Chicago, but newspapers, figuring up the total of an extra cent paid here, an ounce lopped off there, placed the overcharges during the Sierritella regime as high as $54,000,000.

The defense had described the two men as honest public officers who had "come up from the bottom." Both had been news stand owners, both had risen to responsible posts in Chicago's public life—Sierritella, the ward committeeman in the First ward, the downtown "Loop" district, and a state senator; Hochstein once the city morals inspector.

Train Attached By Court At Camden

Freight Tied Up After Railroad Fails to Pay $25,586.50 in Fines

CAMDEN.—Held by order of Justice R. L. Boddie of Camden, a Missouri Pacific local freight train was tied up in the Camden yards Tuesday. Justice Boddie levied an execution on the train when the railroad company failed to pay the $25,586.50 fine assessed against it for alleged violation of the full crew laws in Ouachita county.

The railroad failed to file proper appeal, Justice Boddie said.

July 9 Justice Boddie found the railroad guilty on 365 charges of violation of the full crew law, one each day during the year. He levied a fine of $50 and costs in each case, making $70.10 on each charge.

Justice Boddie said Tuesday that time for appeal had lapsed and he issued the execution holding the freight train until the fine was paid. Officials of the railroad company called him by telephone from St. Louis and other cities seeking release of the train, but the local justice would not revoke the order.

Fines were levied against the railroad company in Union county when similar cases were tried there a short time ago. An engine, caboose and seven freight cars on the Missouri Pacific Lines are in custody of Constable Lute Stone, who observed the execution order.

Justice Boddie told railroad officials Tuesday that they would release the train only when a stay bond was filed and approved or the fines paid.

Senator Robinson Presents Loan Plan As Economic Relief

In presenting this program, Democratic leader placed the most importance in the balance of the Federal Budget.

Judgment Will Be Upheld, Says Fall

Vindication of Honolulu Naval Base Plan Expected by Ex-Secretary

THREE RIVERS, N. M.—(AP)—The Honolulu Naval Base plan, which was vetoed by the president, is expected to be upheld by the Supreme Court, according to Albert B. Fall, ex-secretary of the interior. Fall declared that the plan, which was vetoed Tuesday from the New Mexico territory, "Proposed up in bed, he received a verdict and made his first public utterance in nearly a year. Smoking and chewing a cigar, he discussed his prison life with a tinge of humor and went over the past in great detail.

"If the Chinese and Japanese situation had continued and we had become involved, we would have found out, damned soon, the value of the Honolulu oil base I championed," Fall said.

"We need something like that war scare to wake us up. We let every body in ahead of us and then we act. My children and my grandchildren will live to see the day when my judgment will be vindicated."

Referring to his experiences in the New Mexico prison, where he served 10 months and 19 days of a year and a day sentence for accepting a bribe from Edward L. Doheny in connection with leases of the naval oil reserve, Fall said:

"I was weak and thin. I lost 39 pounds while I was up there. They treated me well—as well as a prisoner could be treated. I was not accorded any special privileges.

"There were many funny things about my stay there. I was to be treated like all other federal prisoners. There was only one other federal prisoner—a Navajo serving a sentence for horse stealing.

"I have paid my debt to society and I'm glad to be out; glad to be with my family again. Everything will come out in the washing. Let time wipe out the bitterness and differences."

Fall paid a compliment to Warden Swope, whom he referred to as a fine man, and made a sarcastic thrust at the warden's refusal to release him until the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia had amended his commitment in reference to the fine of $100,000 imposed upon him in connection with his prison sentence.

"I amused me because it was embarrassing to the warden to have me there and he would like to have gotten rid of me, but at the last he didn't seem to want to let me go."

The simple, pleasant things the dreamer sees—
Blown bud and spangled shell and moon-glade white—
Attune themselves, for him, to chords and keys
That stay his breath with heartbreak and delight.
The sounds he daily hears—the breeze of morn,
A riot in the green and crimson leaves,
Or fluttering the milk-scented corn,
The thenody of gusty spring-like eyes.
The 'chanson of the hidden forest thrush,
The lullaby of clover-breathing rains,
He feels—he holds them in his pulses rush,
And winds them with his music's crystal skeins.
And, listening, we dream of breeze and shower,
Of beating wave and rain-bent orchard spray,
Yet know not that the master draws his power
From dear, familiar things we slight each day.—Selected.

Predicted as Sign of Returning Prosperity to This Country

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Gypsy trails are leading again to the United States and Mrs. W. H. Cole, known as the Gypsy postmistress, sees in this a sign that prosperity is returning.

Letters come to Mrs. Cole from Gypsies in many parts of the world and now they are telling of plans to return to America, which many left in 1929 coincident with the depression's beginning.

Mrs. Cole says the Gypsies three years ago left in large numbers for South America, Central America, Mexico, Hawaii, Europe and even to Africa.

Gypsies, Mrs. Cole says, have a peculiar business sense—they go where money is being made. Thus she attaches significance to the reports she is receiving that bands are coming back to the United States from various sections of the world.

For instance, she received a letter recently from Miller Costello, father of Steve Costello, king of the Spanish Gypsy tribes in America, indicating he would soon return from Brazil.

The State Ticket Closes

With seven candidates for United States senator, twelve for governor, eight for lieutenant governor, and a total of seventy-four seeking the major offices of the commonwealth, Arkansas voters will do mighty well if they pick able men in half the contests.

While it is too early for the electorate to have passed judgment on any race, they have formed a prejudice against certain candidates that will make for interesting watching as the campaign draws on.

It has been our good or ill fortune to have witnessed the political battles of Arkansas for going on ten years, from the intimate viewpoint of a newspaper editor. We saw the late Governor Thomas C. McRae pass the Harrelson road law and the 3-cent gasoline tax through the legislature in 1923. That was the beginning.

We saw Tom Campbell, spokesman for Governor Tom Terral, address the governor's road committee of seventy-five in 1925, and advocate the construction of state roads with toll-gates furnishing the revenue—only to be laughed out of the committee-room by men who very well knew that no federal aid would be allowed on a state toll road. And that finished Tom Terral as governor.

One of the men who had sponsored the Harrelson act, and who was loudest in his denunciation of Terral, is, like Terral, a candidate for the governorship this August—Judge S. W. Bone. Another candidate, whose record of public service runs back behind that of Judge Bone is Chancellor J. M. Putrell. These are good men, versed in Arkansas political history, and vitally associated with the issues now before the people.

The chief interest of the campaign will center in Dwight H. Blackwood, whose candidacy, announced at the last minute, was a political sensation. Mr. Blackwood, at the time that Chancellor Putrell and Judge Bone were making history for the whole state, was sheriff of Mississippi county. He was appointed state treasurer by Governor Terral, and from that office advanced by election to the chairmanship of the State Highway Commission, defeating the late Herbert R. Wilson for our own county in 1926.

When the State Highway Commission was made a permanent body, appointed by the governor, in 1929, Mr. Blackwood retained office under appointment—and it is our opinion that there is wide-spread resentment against the appointment of a financial institution like the highway department re-entering the political arena and attempting to be elected governor.

Cynical observers will remind us that we are foolish ever to suppose that the highway department was out of politics. But the highway department should be out of politics, and establishing a precedent that the supposedly non-partisan head of the department may bring all his power and influence into play against the rest of the field of candidates for the sake of personal ambition, isn't going to help either the highway department or Arkansas politics.

Mr. Blackwood has a world of responsibility to shoulder in seeking the governorship. He is under suspicion for the financial condition of his part of the state government, in an investigation that has not yet been completed. If elected governor, regardless of the final outcome of the investigation, he would in effect be the trial judge sitting in judgment over the results of an investigation of himself. This is an intolerable prospect, and the people won't stand for it.

Furthermore, we have reason to believe that through the political influence either of Mr. Blackwood or other highway officials, the department joined hands a year ago with the County Judges association in a conspiracy to increase the gasoline tax for the benefit of the county judges and at great expense and danger to the whole structure of state government.

Tremendous pressure brought upon the legislature from these sources succeeded in marking up the gasoline tax from 5 to 8 cents a gallon—even though the two Hempstead county representatives voted against it.

The state did not get that extra cent. The county judges got it.

That tax added $17,000 to the burden of Hempstead county taxpayers in 1931, a panic year when farmhands were going delinquent on an unheard-of scale and the ghost of bankruptcy was stalking the land.

County Judge L. F. Higgason admitted to The Star on December 22 last that he attended the secret meeting of county judges at Little Rock a year ago last winter when the judges voted to demand that the legislature increase the gas tax. Judge Higgason said he voted against it. But he was there, and the program was put through the legislature. Men do not pay their expenses to Little Rock for a program they don't wish well, regardless how they actually voted. And none of these facts was dug up until The Star carried them to Judge Higgason and asked him point-blank for an answer.

Blackwood has enough water to carry in minor political fights to ruin a dozen candidates for governor, even though he enjoyed the implicit confidence of the state as a whole, which it would be somewhat of an exaggeration to say that he does.

One wise man appears in the lot—Harvey Parnell. The governor, crown prince to Judge John E. Martineau, and ruler of the demesne of Arkansas these last several years, says he is a tired man and is going back to Chicot county to run his 3,000-acre farm. Hardly notable for his own sense of humor, there is nevertheless a humorous and pathetic touch in Harvey's pronouncement. People can't say that he lacks courage to make a campaign, for between running a state full of bickering people and running 3,000 inanimate acres of farmland these panic times, Harvey has chosen the harder of the two.

At least Harvey knows what's cut out for him the next few years. And it won't be easy.

The people of Arkansas, facing seventy-four candidates, aren't quite sure what is cut out for them. And the best we can do is hope that it won't be hard.

Real Estate Man on Trial Wednesday

Louis Mason Arraigned on Charge of Attacking His Wife

ASHDOWN.—Louis Mason, formerly a real estate dealer here, was indicted by the Little River grand jury Monday charged with assault with intent to kill. He is alleged to have attacked his wife with a hammer several months ago, wounding her seriously. Mrs. Mason was taken to a hospital at Texarkana where her life was despaired of for several days. She recovered, however, and has returned to her home here. Mason's case was set for trial Wednesday.

Seven other persons were indicted Monday, as follows: George and William Riley and Allen Walker, grand larceny; Bob Adams, statutory offense and Floyd House, Jim Tong and Mark Woodley, burglary and grand larceny. The two Rileys and Walker will be tried Tuesday, and the other indicted Monday will be tried Wednesday.

This Will Happen

HOUSTON, Texas.—City Secretary Fred Turner had for a long time been using a silver cigarette lighter he received from his wife. The fuel ran out recently and Fred reverted to matches until he got the lighter filled. A few days ago he got in his car, thrust a cigarette in his mouth, pulled out the lighter—it lit the cigarette and threw the lighter away. He was in the habit of discarding used matches and forgot he had his lighter. He couldn't find it after he had stopped his car and looked for it.

Doctor Takes Poison; Pens Death Tale

Injecting a fatal dose of drugs into his left leg, Dr. George T. Boyd, 49, prominent Hollywood physician, above, then calmly recorded the approach of death in a dramatic document turned over to police when his body was found in the seat of his automobile at a lonely spot near Pacific View. In a note to his wife, Dr. Boyd blamed the depression for his deed and told her his insurance would take care of her. "It's surprisingly easy," he wrote. "I can feel the poison at my heart. My throat is dry. I hear the thunder of hoofs, galloping." Then the note ended with a blur.

Do You Remember?

THIRTY YEARS AGO

An agreement has been signed by the merchants of the city in which they propose to close their stores, during the summer months, excepting Saturdays and Railroad pay days, at 7 o'clock, p. m., for the purpose of giving their clerks and employees more recreation. This is right and proper and no one will lose thereby, and it will give those who have to stay in the house all day a chance to get out and enjoy themselves.

Mrs. Mitchell Neely, who has spent the past several weeks with her mother, Mrs. Mattie Lowry, of this city, joined her husband at Ogenaw Sunday, where in the future they will reside. Mr. Neely is in the mill business at that place.

TEN YEARS AGO

M. W. Gresson, of Prescott, was a business visitor to Hope this morning. Work is progressing rapidly in the drilling of the Duckett No. 1 test well for oil and gas four miles south of Hope, a depth of 1,000 feet having been reached today. Yesterday a chalk formation was entered, in which there was some showing of gas.

Mrs. J. R. Whitthorne has returned from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Joe Flynn, at Little Rock.

Mrs. Patrick Duffie and little daughter, Jacqueline Patricia, left yesterday for a visit to her sister, Miss Gladys Norwood, at Fort Smith.

Mrs. Alice Thornton-Herring, and little daughters, Gertrude and Frances, who have been visiting relatives and friends here the past ten days, have returned to their home at Dallas, Texas.

Grain Sorghum as Feed Recommended

Demonstrations Show That Good Yields Are Made Most Any Year

In recent years a few varieties of grain sorghums have been grown for feed in most parts of Arkansas, and they have demonstrated that they can be depended upon to produce good yields of feed even in rather severe dry weather, states D. J. Burleson, Extension agronomist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

The grain sorghums withstand dry weather better than corn and, as a rule, they produce better. Dry weather is one of the chief reasons for low yields of corn. For this reason it is a good plan to plant a portion of the grain land to a grain sorghum and a portion to corn as a partial insurance against drought.

Among the best varieties of grain sorghums are Sagrain, Hegari, Grohoma, and Darso. There are many other varieties, but these four are usually among the most dependable. Last year some farmers paid high prices for Grohoma and found that it was about equivalent to Sagrain or Hegari as a feed producer.

Experiments conducted by the Agricultural Experiment Station of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, show that in a good corn year corn will outyield grain sorghums on good land. In 1930, however, the severe drought cut the corn yields far more severely than it did the grain sorghum yields.

The best date for planting grain sorghums is some time in May. The earliest date should be about two weeks later than the earliest date for planting corn. The latest date for planting is the latter part of June.

Grain sorghums should be planted in rows and cultivated in the same way as sweet sorghums. Spacing should be from 8 to 15 inches according to the fertility of the land.

DURING THE FIRST FOUR MONTHS OF 1932

Subscription Collections Gained 45-per cent. Over Last Year

FOR THE SAME FOUR MONTHS!

What is a better guide to the esteem in which a newspaper is held than the manner in which its public subscribers for that newspaper?

That the families of Southwest Arkansas, and especially of Hempstead County, depend more and more upon the Hope Star to keep informed of news and merchandising events, is indicated in the year after year growth of subscription collections.

The subscription books show that cash collections, during the first four months of this year, exceed cash collections for the same period of 1931 by 45 per cent.

Collections for the same period of 1931 also showed a gain over 1930 of one and one-quarter per cent. This, regardless of the drouth of the Summer of 1930, which affected all business the following spring.

During the three and one-third years of the Hope Star subscription collections have increased over the preceding year in each instance, without exception.

This healthy growth has come more from the families in the smaller neighboring towns, and especially from the rural routes in the Hope trade territory. Indicating an increasing respect for the Hope Star as a newspaper, and as an advertising medium throughout this section.

To conform to the new postal rules, all mail subscriptions to the Hope Star are stopped immediately upon expiration. Every subscription is a paid subscription.

It is only natural that people will respond more readily to advertisements in a newspaper which is paid for. The advertiser may be assured that his message will be read, if it is presented in a manner that will catch the eye, and arrest the attention of the readers. The Hope Star can help you prepare this kind of advertising.

In most of the homes within the immediate trade territory, whether rural or town homes, you will find the daily Hope Star on the family reading table six days a week. Most of these families depend upon this newspaper for all their store news. For bargains—for styles—for their clothing and foods—in fact for almost everything they buy. Are you reaching the cash customers of the people of this section of Arkansas?

The simple, pleasant things the dreamer sees—
Blown bud and spangled shell and moon-glade white—
Attune themselves, for him, to chords and keys
That stay his breath with heartbreak and delight.
The sounds he daily hears—the breeze of morn,
A riot in the green and crimson leaves,
Or fluttering the milk-scented corn,
The therodny of gusty spring-like eyes.
The chamon of the hidden forest thrush,
The lullaby of clover-breathing rains,
He feels he holds them in his pulses rush,
And winds them with his music's crystal sheins.
And, listening, we dream of breeze and shower,
Of bending wave and rain-bent orchard spray,
Yet know not that the master draws his power
From dear, familiar things we slight each day.—Selected.

Home Run? Oh, Baby!

When the 12th baby made its appearance at the home of John Peet, Ash-tabula, Ohio, ball fan, the supply of names ran out. So when No. 13 came along Papa Peet named him after Dick Porter, a member of the Cleveland American League ball team, who hit a home run the day the baby was born. When the season opened this year Baby No. 14 had arrived. The christening was delayed until the first home. The Indians went into a slump until Fielder Joe Vossnik hit one. But there already was a Joe in the family. Peet went to the game every day. Then Earl Averill connected. So now Peet is holding Dick Porter Peet, right, and Earl Averill Peet, left. The force of the terrific crash threw Mrs. Jackson through the windshield of her car, cutting her seriously about the face and throat, and shattering her husband and also receiving a badly lacerated throat and a broken leg.

Smith and the Jacksons were on their way from Longview to Hot Springs when the accident occurred. Gramann is connected with the lease department of the Gulf Refining company at Tyler. He was on his way back to his headquarters after a trip through Missouri.

Persons who went to the scene of the accident said both cars were demolished.

A blood transfusion was given Jackson at 9 p. m. when it became apparent that he had lost a great quantity of blood from a serious gash in his throat. More than a pint of blood was furnished by C. M. Baldwin, city fireman, who with L. C. Bennett, another member of the fire department, appeared at the hospital when a call was sent out by physicians to save the man's life.

Jackson's condition was considered very grave at 12:30 a. m. Wednesday.

Gypsy Trails Are Leading to U. S.

Predicted as Sign of Returning Prosperity to This Country

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Gypsy trails are leading again to the United States and Mrs. W. H. Cole, known as the Gypsy postmistress, sees in this a sign that prosperity is returning.

Letters come to Mrs. Cole from Gypsies in many parts of the world and now they are telling of plans to return to America, which many left in 1929 coincident with the depression's beginning.

Mrs. Cole says the Gypsies three years ago left in large numbers for South America, Central America, Mexico, Hawaii, Europe and even to Africa.

Gypsies, Mrs. Cole says, have a peculiar business sense—they go where money is being made. Thus she attaches significance to the reports she is receiving that bands are coming back to the United States from various sections of the world.

For instance, she received a letter recently from Miller Costello, father of Steve Costello, king of the Spanish Gypsy tribes in America, indicating he would soon return from Brazil.

Wife Found Dead in Stream

Husband Held for Questioning, Denies Knowledge of Murder

LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—Here Monday night identified the body of a woman found Monday in a small stream near here, as that of his wife, Gertrude, 18 Meeker, from the Holmes county jail to view the bruised body at a morgue here, altered and clasped a handkerchief to his eyes.

"Gertrude," he said, facing the case briefly, "get up and tell them who did it."

Since his arrest early in the afternoon, as he was preparing to plant corn on his farm near Creston, Meeker, denied any knowledge of the woman in which his girl-wife met her death.

Detectives took him into custody after they had found his automobile, blood-stained and partially demolished against a tree near where the body was found. They said the car appeared to have been wrecked purposely. Ash-stained white shirt was found at his home, officers said.

Meeker stuck steadfastly to his story that his wife disappeared during the night and that when he awoke Monday he found his automobile and about it missing.

It was disclosed that Meeker and his wife had been reunited only a few hours after a separation of about six months.

Really For Rub

PORT WORTH, Texas.—A wrinkled little man entered the offices of Federal Judge James Wilson and asked for a gallon of medical liquor "for a rheumatism cure." He explained that he was going to mix the whisky with a dead rattlesnake and herbs, and rub the concoction on his ailing knee. He promised to bring the snake into the judge's office to show he was on the level.

A middlewestern lawyer sang a song for a jury, which promptly found him guilty. But they let the lawyer go free.

Brings Charm to State Bar

Arkansans Death Claimed Accidental

Seven-Year-Old Son, in Hospital, Tells of Incident

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The death of John T. Atteberry, aged 34, whose body was found floating in a drainage ditch near North Little Rock Sunday, was accidental and not murder, according to information given to chief of detectives Gavin by the dead man's seven year old son, Earl, who is in a hospital here with a fractured skull.

The father and son were blown off a rock ledge by a high wind which accompanied a cloudburst that struck about 3 p. m., Sunday in the vicinity of Fort Roots mountain. Gavin said the boy told him. Atteberry was tumbled into the stream in which his lifeless body was later found. The boy was blown against a tree, where he clung until the wind abated. The fall from the ledge resulted in the injury to his head. The child said he saw his father carried down the stream for several yards and then disappear beneath the water.

The child's statement to Gavin resulted in abandonment by North Little Rock and county officers to the murder theory advanced last night. When advised of the facts by Gavin Dr. Samuel G. Boyce, coroner, returned a verdict that Atteberry's death was the result of a fractured skull and drowning.

Start New Fight in 'Hon or Murder' Conviction

Determined to carry an appeal to the highest court in Hawaii, and as a last resort hoping for a pardon by the governor-general, Clarence Darrow, famous U. S. attorney, announced he was continuing the fight following conviction on manslaughter charges of the four principals in the Massie-Fortescue trial. In these new pictures from Honolulu Darrow is shown with George S. Leisure, co-defense counsel, extreme left. The first picture to show all principals entering court, above, was taken as the case neared the jury. Left to right: E. J. Lord, enlisted man; Lieutenant Thomas Massie, U. S. ## Proteins Boost Profit If Given Hogs With Corn

URBANA, Ill.—(AP)—Twenty-two cents a bushel was added to the net profits from corn fed to hogs with a supplementary protein mixture of tankage and linseed meal as against corn fed not supplemented, according to results of an experiment at the University of Illinois agriculture college.

Dr. W. E. Carroll, chief in swine husbandry at the college, says there is a tendency among hog-raisers to skimp on proteins because most farms raise no satisfactory protein supplements and it must be purchased.

Burned Fatally in Blaze at Gurdon

Hugh Whitmore Trapped When Vacant Building Catches Fire

GURDON.—Hugh Whitmore, aged 30, of Gurdon, was burned to death Monday morning in a fire that destroyed a vacant dwelling house belonging to the Whitmore estate.

The burned building in which Whitmore's charred body was found had been unoccupied for several months but recently had been rented to M. Vandover, section foreman, who was preparing to move his family to Gurdon. However, Mr. Vandover had moved any of his furniture into the building, but had planted a small garden.

The alarm was sounded at about 12:30, and the Fire Department responded immediately, but before the hose had been connected Dave Malcom, member of the department, heavy some one in the building exclaimed, "Oh, my God!" The building was in flames and an open as possible it was entered by Marshal J. Sheppard and Dave Malcom and the charred body was found in a corner of the kitchen.

Coroner Alva Harris of Arkadelphia was called to hold an inquest. The jury rendered a verdict that "he came to his death by being trapped in burning building."

Identification was made by a buckle and by a pocket book which contained receipts and other papers and had been shielded from the fire by his body.

The fire gained headway rapidly and it was impossible for the firemen to render any assistance to the trapped man.

Whitmore was the son of the late E. A. Whitmore and Mrs. Whitmore. His father was one of the first business men in Gurdon.

Whitmore is survived by his mother and three sisters.

"Why don't you go to church more?"

"Because the preacher has it in me."

"How is that?"

"Well, the first time I went, I threw some water in my face. The second time he tied me to something that I can't get rid of and I'm at the third time we mean he will tie dirt on me."

AND a real gasoline must have everything. Too! A high octane rating is not enough. To be quick starting is not enough.

Gasoline may contain sulphur which you cannot see (though you may be able to smell it.)

No gasoline is economical when you pay for it twice. Once when you use it and again when you are paying hard-earned cash for corroded bearings and unnecessary carbon removal jobs.

What you want is trouble-free, low-cost transportation. Power that gets you there without ruining an expensive engine. Power that can be counted on when you need it. Power that starts like a flash—and is still with you at the end of the run.

A gasoline to give you this must have everything.
